Editor’s Note

What a year 2020 has turned out to be! The dawn of a new era, don’t you think? When we started this year, we had so much ideas on how to revolutionize the Yearbook as we entered a new decade. By the end of June, we were certain that we wouldn’t be resuming normalcy, which for us, meant that we wouldn’t be able to fulfill our dream. I’ll be honest, it felt like I had chosen the worst year to be editor. In fact, the whole team felt the same about being in the 2020 team. It appeared like we would’t have anything to show for it, all our ideas and hopes for the book would amount to nothing. In a way, I suppose this year is a metaphor for the lack of control we have over the external factors in our lives.

However, the fact that this book exists now is an even greater illustration of how well humans adapt to external changes. Just as you feel for having graduated, we made it! I must be the luckiest editor for having the kind of dedicated team I’ve had, especially since our positions are voluntary. Together, we have learned so much, created systems of efficiency, and diversify our skills. Having to work virtually requires much more effort to create harmony and this experience has been a worthy one, and for that, I’m grateful for you, Class of 2020. You made this happen because this book was made for you.

As you read through the book and get excited to find your name and picture, I hope you carry the journey of creating the book with you. I hope you read through the words of wisdom left for you by your alma mater and you that some have a lifelong meaning for you. I hope you read your peers’ stories and it helps you understand them better. I hope this book helps you reflect on your own journey at USIU-A memorialized forever between these pages. And I hope it’s been wonderful, from its dawn to its dusk.

Acknowledgements

The Yearbook Team, would like to express its gratitude to all those who have stood by them to achieve the task of delivering this book. This year is one that will go down in the books for its unpredictability, global impact and for us, we nearly gave up on producing the book. The existence of this book is testament to our commitment to the task given to us and we are grateful to everyone who has been with us from the very beginning. Our thanks go out to Mr. Robert Onsarigo, who fully embodies his deanship, Mr. Chris Ayuoyi who has walked with us at every step of this journey, Dr. Joseph Nyanoti, our faculty advisor and Hudson Amenya, SAC advisor.

This book wouldn’t have come to be without the technical and in some ways, emotional support of Zerrubbabel Odera who came on board at our greatest hour of need. Michael Chege was of overwhelming help when it came to using to handling data, and his help sped the process tremendously. Further, we would like to recognize the people who started with us, but couldn’t finish the journey with us; Benjamin Awuor and Martin Kwame, their help with setting up our system in photography was priceless. Roy Gichovi is also appreciated for his work in the research team.

As for many of the photos used in the book, we’d like to thank John Garang for his incredible skills.

Thank you!

You are a special class for me because most of you joined USIU-Africa after I took over from the extraordinary leadership of Professor Freida Brown who served for a remarkable 21 years. So we have a lot of shared experiences over the last five years. We have seen the University grow in the size of its student body, faculty, and staff; and in the number of schools, departments and range of degree programs. We have witnessed the expansion of activities, opportunities, and external partnerships that support and help sustain our core mission of teaching and learning, research and scholarship, public service and engagement; and entrepreneurship and innovation. You are a special class because in your last academic year you went through the most devastating and disruptive pandemic in a century. You transitioned abruptly from face-to-face teaching and learning when the campus was closed on March 17, 2020, and finished a part of your spring semester and all of your summer semester taking classes online. You benefitted from the massive investments the University has made over the years in electronic infrastructure, the phenomenon dedication of faculty and support staff.

Above all, you demonstrated resilience, creativity, and commitment. There were challenges of course, but you persevered and finished your studies with little interruption. You are a special class because you are the first to undergo a virtual commencement ceremony. We of course all wish we celebrated with you and your families, friends, and loved ones in the pomp and grandeur of a traditional commencement. However, that was not possible and you have become pioneers in what in future may become quite common as our university, like others, embraces the modalities of face-to-face, online and blended teaching and learning. The emergence of new traditions is embedded in the long history of universities. As human beings we don’t always choose our circumstances, but we have the power and imagination to shape them. This is one such moment and you will be remembered as pace setters. You are a special class because you will be entering or continuing your professional lives in a world transformed by the coronavirus pandemic. The nimbleness and flexibility you have learned, the creativity perseverance and fortitude you have demonstrated since March 2020 can only serve you well. This, combined with the knowledges, skills, competencies and literacies you acquired from your various majors, co-circular activities, and community service and engagement, have prepared you for success and lifelong learning in a very demanding, challenging, unpredictable, and competitive world.

Match into the world with the demeanor of a conqueror

Prof. Munyae Mulinge
Associate DVC-Academic & Student Affairs

Sincere congratulations

to you all on graduating and on your outstanding achievement! Although for some of you it might look like it was only yesterday that joined USIU-Africa, the moment to be proud of and to celebrate your success is upon us. As you exit USIU -Africa, remember that college graduation, though a grand achievement is not the apex of your ambitions in life. Your whole life is still ahead of you and graduation should only be the genesis of a life decorated with many more achievements. As long as you believe you can, you can achieve whatever you want in life. USIU-Africa believed in you and today releases you to the world fully prepared for a career in your area of training.

Now that you have completed the most impactful chapter in your book of “The Rest of My Life”, it is time to live and practice its contents. We have trained you well and given you a unique ‘education to take you places’. With confidence match into the world with the demeanor of a conqueror. Unleash not just the knowledge you have acquired from USIU-Africa over the years but also your full potential. Always cherish the fruits of your hard work. Live life to the fullest and give it the best. As you chase your dreams, embrace a winner’s spirit of never-stop-trying, never-stop-learning. May your future be bright; may success keep following you in everything that you do. And as you do whatever you plan to do, do not forget to:

Do it for yourself!
Dear graduands,

The Student Affairs Department has walked with you since the first day of your orientation till this day when USIU-Africa confers on you the degree that you have earned through hard work. We believe that USIU-Africa has created in you the passion to perpetuate excellence in all your undertakings. The intertwined nature of co-curricular and academic programs in the University has molded you into a global citizen.

It has been a challenging period that required your resilience, perseverance and graceful approach towards life. There have been moments characterized with pure joy and at times pain and tears, and you took it all in a stride. Each student graduating today can give a testimony of their experience in USIU-Africa.

We sincerely believe that you have gained skills that will help you excel in the real world of work. As we approach a new dawn of your life, we urge you to work hard and smart so as to achieve your goals. Always draw your dreams and aspirations closer to you while simultaneously moving towards them. The normal world that all of us were used to has changed with the advent of the COVID-19 pandemic. We sincerely believe that USIU-Africa has equipped you with skills and a positive attitude towards life; professionalism and work ethics that will help you adjust to the new norm and embrace the breaking dawn for yours has been a dusk to dawn journey. Congratulations class of 2020.

“embrace the breaking dawn for yours has been a dusk to dawn journey.”

Keep the flame of excellence alive wherever you go.
That is what USIU-Africa does best: to prepare its students to face the diverse challenges of life.

Graduating Class of 2020:
You have worked day and night to attain these accolades for yourselves. Congratulations!!! I know it took careful planning and sacrifice to reach this goal. Attending classes and learning activities day after day, semester after semester and year after year enabled you to gain knowledge, skills and values which will remain highly prized to you now and in the future.

You have also attained diverse and sharpened your cross-cultural skills as you interacted with others from different nations. Through the many opportunities made available to you at USIU-Africa, you sharpened your critical thinking and social skills. The many group assignments enabled you to develop cooperation skills as well. All these make you well rounded and grounded to face the world.

That is what USIU-Africa does best to prepare its students to face the diverse challenges of life.

The skills attained at USIU-Africa will enable you to take the various opportunities which lie ahead of you.

Class of 2020, you will remain extraordinary as you managed to adapt to an unprecedented environmental change of the COVID-19 pandemic to accomplish your studies. We remain confident that you manage the future well, given your positive and resilient attitude. You have accomplished some good things in your life, however, one thing which must continue is hard work and character building because they are pivotal navigational tools in your future life.

My journey has been more about a gradual enrichment of perspective, rather than a constant activity. It is the ability to appreciate things differently. Though reflecting on it all, the major theme of my journey has been this: the ability to reflect on my experiences so that I can learn for the better good. I can rectify my mistakes and repeat my triumphs. To utilize every positive, negative, or indifferent experience is to have the most meaningful, if not exciting, journey.

Though Homer’s “The odyssey” details a graphic journey of eventful adventures and emotions that shape Odysseus as a person, we all go through micro-decisions that are capable of changing the course of our life in a less obvious way. The more I have delved into my pursuit of knowledge and my collective experiences, I have understood that although people may have similar goals, our paths are of uniqueness and novelty.

While I was doing my MBA Health Leadership and Management course at USIU-Africa, I learnt that the most important aspect in our journey is not merely the events that occur in it – they are the cards we deal, by way of our reactions. From studying for my graduate degree through the various interactions and assessments - with exams, group work, course work, meeting different people, and my numerous personal, spiritual, and professional endeavors, I have found that all I learnt and applied would continue to amalgamate with time. During my studies, my classmates and I encountered the unprecedented experience resulting from the Covid 19 pandemic which led to halting of physical learning across all academic institutions. We were apprehensive about what would happen next but the USIU-Africa quickly transformed our studies to online learning ensuring no time was lost on our part. The online learning for part of my last semester was a very intriguing experience that invited a lot of discipline and commitment from my side as a student. It was an exceptional experience doing a virtual tour of South Korea focusing mainly on their advanced health care systems that have enabled accessible, convenient, affordable and quality health care services to its populace. In the corridors of knowledge acquisition I met many amazing and important people, was able to do things that I loved, and I have expanded my understanding of what really matters in life.

My journey has been more about a gradual enrichment of perspective, rather than a constant activity. It is the ability to appreciate things differently. Though reflecting on it all, the major theme of my journey has been this: the ability to reflect on my experiences so that I can learn for the better good. What’s Next?
By a remarkable stroke of fortune, I graduated at the top of my class at Undergraduate, Master's level and Doctoral levels. This, however, is the first time I have been asked to contribute an article for the University Yearbook. I am greatly honored by the privilege, which has allowed me to relive the memories of my 25 years of academic study.

Like with my fellow graduands, this event is the culmination of a life-long quest for excellence. That quest was instilled in me by my parents in my formative years. My parents were business people who taught us hard-work and sacrifice. At elementary school, they required us to help out on the farm and in the family shop during school holidays. Occasionally, we would sneak out of work to play but the punishment for that was unbearable, and we all had to toe the line.

Years later, I came to appreciate that to excel in anything we do, we must focus on our goals and give up fleeting pleasure. By the time I was 11, I could plan my time with minimal supervision. I excelled in academics until I joined the JKUAT where I graduated with a First-Class BSc degree in Food Science. My first permanent job was with a commercial bank. After 10 years offering trade finance solutions to businesses, I undertook an MBA at Strathmore Business School to improve my strategic thinking skills. My output grew markedly, as did the growth of the business I was leading. I felt I could do even more for businesses by connecting practical solutions to policy – hence my joining this challenging but immeasurably empowering Doctoral program.

The course demanded more sacrifices than I have ever made. With my Friday evenings and Saturdays taken by classes, I scaled down my social life and reserved Sundays for class assignments. Thanks to the wonderful professors, exceptional campus facilities and the twin program with Columbia University that has exposed me to the incubation of start-ups in the United States – the program was worth more than my sacrifices.

Looking back at my journey at USIU-A, I am filled with a deep sense of gratitude to the Almighty God, my family and friends, and the faculty who walked this path with me. I have grown both professionally and personally through the knowledge I gained, skills I learnt and the friends I made. The 'blood, sweat and tears' of fulfilling the demands of work, school and life brought out my inner gladiator. It reinforced in me three key life lessons: you are the captain of your ship, have a clear vision, and strive courageously.

As the captain of your ship, who you are, what you believe and the values that you hold dear are beacons of light on your voyage; guiding you to your destination and warning you of any danger. The people on your ship can make your journey easier or more difficult, choose them wisely. Akin to selecting your own 'Formula One crew' or '300-man army’, you will know them by their fruits. Vision is the destination of your voyage. It is imperative that you have a clear view of who you want to be, where you want to be and what you want to achieve. During the journey, it provides a point of reference when you need motivation or recalibration.

Striving courageously entails sailing through both calm and troubled waters. Comfort zones are enemy territories, do not dock your ship there. Challenge yourself, your thinking, and the status quo - keep that which is good. Whatever your endeavours may be, do them with excellence. In the words of Theodore Roosevelt, remember that, “credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood” and “who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly”.

Congratulations to you, the class of 2020! You are a special cohort! You are graduating in the middle of a global pandemic. You watched in despair as the global culture crumbled, as it threatened our collective livelihoods. You stayed home, socially-distanced, and used novel ways of schooling. You relentlessly trudged on, through all the adversities, and have finally emerged victorious today. I am proud of you! You have taught me that no matter how daunting dusk is, a beautiful dawn always awaits.

Many unprecedented things have happened in the recent past that have left me questioning our very being. I have reckoned with the meaning of life, the future of humanity, and of entire institutions. I have concluded that I, like most other people, do not know what may come at dusk. Life is uncertain and it will always be uncertain. Therefore, while on such occasions I would naturally ask you to go out there and seize the world. Today I send you a message of love and encouragement. Know and believe that no matter how hard and brutal life may be, your hard work and resilience will be your knight in shining armor. Do not despair and lose hope in the middle of the fight. Stay focused, keep thinking about your future careers, and don’t forget to take all the necessary precautions.

Again, congratulations for your hard work, perseverance, and accomplishments. I wish you the very best in your next chapter. Continue updating us on your progress in your careers and personal lives.

We will always take pride in your achievements.

“Never say never because limits, like fear, are often just an illusion.”
I would be lying if I said that this journey was easy and smooth. I would like to thank the Almighty God, and my family. I remember the day I got my acceptance letter through an email. I quickly ran to my mother and told her the good news, she carried me on her back and we danced around.

A couple of weeks later, I was on a flight to university with my father, excited for the journey that lay ahead. I was scared, but happy at the same time. I was ready to take on the challenge, make friends and live in the busy city of Nairobi, Kenya. The moment that changed my outlook of why I was at the university other than doing my course, was during orientation when the academic registrar had the honors grades on the projector and my father looked at me and said, "I hope you know why you're here."

To cut a long story short, the wonderful lecturers, the calm studying environment, the friends I made that helped me understand concepts and worked on projects with me and the long weekends and weekdays in the library contributed to my success, not forgetting the fun activities and adventures out of campus which I would not have done if I had not been accepted at a university in Nairobi that allowed me to let off some steam and enjoy the Kenyan culture like the food, the music and the people outside of the university.

William Earnest Henley’s Invictus is the epitome of inspiration; a poem whose message I believe we should all live by. However, nothing resonates with me as much as the final stanza does.

> It matters not how strait the gate,
> How charged with punishments the scroll,
> I am the master of my fate;
> I am the captain of my soul.

It has always brought home the idea that only we can control the outcome of our lives by the choices we make, the people we associate with, how we respond to situations and how we work to achieve our goals. My educational journey has been met with numerous moments of uncertainty and doubt; instances where I wondered whether I was doing what I was doing because it was my desire or whether I was simply fulfilling someone else’s wishes. This internal struggle and the fear of failure made it so that for a while I was simply going through the motions and checking off milestones in a list of expected stops along the way. This was taking me nowhere.

We all need to realize that our futures are ours and ours alone. Only we know where we want to go and how to get there. Taking charge of our decisions and choices is the only way to ensure that we get the most out of life. Only then would we be able to take on the challenges along the way, persevere through the pain and trials and truly take pleasure in our wins. Life is a continuous journey of learning and growing. Through all these, we should always remember that we are the masters of our fates and the captains of our souls.

You Will Always Cherish Your Decision To Join USIU-africa

Dr. Sylvia Ogola
University Librarian

Class of 2020,
your journey through USIU-Africa has brought you to this day. You can decide where you want to go but you cannot know for sure where the journey of life will take you. Looking back now, I am sure it seems like just the other day when you joined the university. You are certainly not the same – you have established lasting networks around campus, you have been exposed to several cultures and have emerged as a mature, skilled, knowledgeable and, hopefully, streetwise individual who can now tackle the world with confidence.

My university journey began over 30 years ago. I knew I wanted a degree and then a job and my life would be set. It is not easy to predict where you will be 30 years from now. I am a different person now but I would not change any of the decisions I made back then because it is those experiences that have made me who I am today. Never for one second regret your decisions. We go through different stages in life and we learn and grow at each stage, our priorities change and so do our actions. You may stumble and fall several times but when you get up and move on, you journey on and grow wiser, stronger and resilient with each step.

Before joining USIU-Africa, I was comfortable, my life was predictable and looking back, I had settled. Uprooting myself from the life I had settled for was one of the best and hardest decisions I have ever made. I love my job, the environment is to die for and the librarians are awesome. USIU-Africa is an enabler – everyone has the opportunity to grow and develop skills they never even knew they had.

The initiative needs to come from you – when you know where you want to go, the university provides those opportunities regardless of whether you are an employee or a student. I have watched students and staff grow and mature and it is very fulfilling. You are a unique group, 2020 is a unique year, one that cannot be easily forgotten. As you transition, live a life that is not easily forgotten. Build memories – make decisions that you will never regret – keep your real friends at every stage of your life, they know you better than anyone else. Catching up after 30 years is one treat you would not want to miss; ask me. Please don’t settle or get too comfortable – there is much more on the horizon that needs to be explored. This is your time, make the most of it, live your life, take one step at a time in your odyssey through life and before you know it, you will be where you want to be.

Hongera, Class of 2020.
You did it! Congratulations pioneer Pharmacy Class of 2020

Francis Ndemo, PharmD
Dean, School of Pharmacy & Health Sciences

Congratulations!

Class of 2020 for making it to the finishing line. You made it. As a pioneer Bachelor of Pharmacy class we are most proud of you. To say the least, this is by no means a small achievement as this is amongst the longest and most rigorous program in USIU-Africa.

You are joining one of the most trusted healthcare professions in society. Pharmacy emerged as a profession to address drug-related needs of society. It is presumptive, therefore, that the pharmacy professional has a social contract of ensuring that patients receive the most effective, the safest possible and the most efficient medication therapy.

In this regard, our pharmacy program has imparted in you the necessary knowledge and skills for the challenges you have ahead in developing clinical, research, industrial, pharmaceutical management careers, among others. We can also proudly say that we have inculcated in you the profession’s attitude, values and behaviors that will build you into a competent professional. In essence this is a professionalization process which starts in your professional school and continues for the rest of your life.

As you proceed to do your internship we wish you success in all your endeavors as you develop your career. Remain vigilant as new exciting opportunities arise. However, this may require further advanced training which I encourage you to pursue.

Lastly, the professional degree you are being awarded should be not be an end in itself but a foundation for building your career. Please feel free to join a growing USIU-Africa alumni Association and help build your alma mater.

Hongera, the class of 2020!

The 2020 Commencement at the United States International University-Africa (USIU-Africa) is not only an odyssey but a milestone in the history of the School of Communication, Cinematic and Creative Arts (SCCCA). For some decades, we have emerged from the labyrinth of our dusk into the dawn of a new era. For many years, our students have been faithful companions in our journey to this spot. We thank them for their patronage!

During past Commencement ceremonies, graduands had always travelled far and near distances to put on the glamorous academic gown and for the first time embrace the much sought-after university degree with wholesome celebration. Today, the story is different. Covid-19 pandemic has prevented USIU-Africa from physical contact graduation ceremony; we are facing a new reality, the virtual world – online graduation. Not to worry, our world is for those who are ready to master the art of adaptation. Last year, Communication Art, Journalism and Cinematic Arts were guests in the School of Science and Technology. This year, the Management of USIU-Africa in its wisdom has created an autonomous community for us – the School of Arts, Cinematic and Creative Arts with an inaugural Dean. The journey thus far has been an exciting one for us. Journalism was, as it still is, the shining light of the School having existed alone for many years. Few years ago, Cinematic Arts was added. Animation followed soon after. Next year, the School plans to add Creative Arts to its curriculum. The proposed Creative Arts will be an interdisciplinary course incorporating Music, Fine and Applied Arts; Theatre, Fashion Design and Styling. For the students who have passed through our School, fond memories will forever live with them. USIU-A cherishes “Intelligence plus character” as the genuine goal of true education.” This reminds me of my undergraduate days at the Premier University of Ibadan in Nigeria where graduands found worthy both in character and in learning were the only ones admitted to the different degrees offered in the institution. Our students will remember the USIU Africa as one of the oldest private universities in East Africa that offers not only broad-based but outcome-based educational experience that will take them places. With cultural and international exposure of the students at USIU-Africa, our students are proud carriers of the “global citizens” banner.

Our students will not forget our modern classrooms with sophisticated equipment, multimedia and e-learning technology; state of the art print, media, broadcast, and film resources. The well-planned and aesthetically-pleasing campus is something to relish. In fact, when I was first employed, I admired the campus and nicknamed it “Campus in the Garden.” On behalf of the faculty and staff, I wish you a fun-filled graduation in spite of the pandemic.

If I got a dollar every time I failed, I’d be a goddamned millionaire. So trust the process; it always works out – even if you don’t go to the gym.

The mission outcomes speak so loudly in my personal life. The acquisition of leadership and ethics, multicultural understanding and a global perspective in education that I have inculcated, are enough to say, there is nothing more to life than being a graduate from USIU-A.
The sky is not the limit, it is another step to greater achievements. Take the step and make it happen.

"Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world." - Nelson Mandela

"There comes a time when humanity is called to shift to a new level of consciousness... that time is now." - Wangari Maathai, Nobel Peace Prize - 2004

As freshmen, we all had a picture of what our graduation would look like. Good grades, proud parents, a walk up the library stairs at the graduation square wearing graduation gowns and caps adorned with colorful tassels and a smile of deep relief. Thankful. Finally, the grind is over, and now a world to conquer awaits. However, when the time came, most of us were in places far away from campus, away from each other. We watched a graduation ceremony prepared for us, rather than took part in one. Many were obviously disappointed. But this is the nature of the present moment. The world is battling a pandemic and measures must be taken to safeguard our collective health. Like every other lesson learned in campus, this final moment is a good precursor to embracing the unexpected. Life is not a pretty picture. It does not owe me, or anyone, uninterrupted processes.

Now that we have been conferred with degrees, we go out into the world with this lesson. Things outside of our plans will happen. Our journey will be interfered with by obstacles we feel inadequate to conquer. Yet we may just be awakened to new and pleasantly surprising possibilities. It is up to us to hunger, to trust the process, to keep grinding and reaching for the goal. If we are kind to ourselves, we will see that in the end our achievements are beautiful. Beauty that is engraved with many moments of continuous hope.

Above all we carry with us the many memories of our days at USIU. Our alma mater now, a place where we forged friendships and held conversations that grew our minds. A memory of difficult moments when we first had to present in front of our classmates, when we failed a CAT and desperately hoped that we would do better in our end semesters. Times when we feared that our voices would not be audible enough or our words
You Have Been Equipped With Skills And Networks To Be A Change Maker

Prof. Martin Njoroge, PhD
Dean, School of Humanities and Social Sciences

Amidst a global pandemic and without the pomp and color. Without the usual walk down to the graduation square on the red carpet. Without company from family, loved ones and classmates, BUT complete and ready to enter into your next stage of life to conquer, transform and inspire.

I am particularly excited for you, considering the journey of excellence that you have walked throughout your academic and co-curricular experiences in USIU-Africa. While here, you have been equipped with sound knowledge and a unique skillset, setting you on a path to thrive anywhere in this diverse world. Every step of your academic journey has prepared you for scholarship, service to humanity and for pursuing excellence in all that you do. I hope you go out there and be the change maker you have been prepared to be. Your ability to embrace and thrive in change has been tested in your last two semesters when normal face-to-face learning was disrupted and for sure you have come out victorious! Change will be the constant thing in the world and while you make this transition.

We at USIU-Africa are nothing but certain that the class of 2020 brings to the society unmatched ability to offer leadership, service, resilience and inspiration for the future especially in the face of a new normal. As you graduate today and join the global space, I encourage you to stay the course. The journey may not be smooth but adversities and difficulties that we face make us stronger. Resolve not to quit before the crowning; draw from your inner strength to forge ahead despite the obstacles that you find your way. Great leaders in the history rose while in the center of crisis and adversity: Martin Luther King – Civil Rights Movement; Winston Churchill – World War II. Their stories remind us that only those global citizens like you, who are driven by strong values, will win, and if you win, Africa and the world certainly win.

On behalf of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, I wish you all the Best. Go out there and shine bright. You are indeed the light that the world needs, especially in the season we are living in.

Top Masters Student in International Relations

My journey to and through USIU-A has been a search for a home – a spiritual and intellectual home. A spiritual home, because I have finally found a place of learning where I can truly say I belong and feel a part of. I came to USIU-A as a wounded student. I had spent several years in the United States pursuing further studies to no avail. Circumstances beyond my control ensured that I did not complete my studies there. Moreover, in the several places of learning that I pursued my studies in, I never felt that I had found a place that I could truly identify with.

Looking back now, all these experiences were preparing me to truly see USIU-A for what it is, an oasis. Here I have found a home for my spirit and an anchor for my mind. An intellectual home, because at USIU-A I finally found what some people spend a lifetime searching for – a passion to live for, a path to dedicate the rest of my life to discovering. I have simply found where I should always have been. In the US, I had started out studying pharmacy, switched to chemical engineering, then switched to civil engineering. To compound my misery, I was forced to drop out of school with one semester left to graduate due to financial difficulties.

On returning to Kenya, I re-started my studies at USIU-A at undergraduate level. My bachelors was in IBA, with a focus on entrepreneurship. With that initial hurdle cleared, I decided to give myself to the study of the one field that has always had my heart – international affairs. That is how I found myself in the IR Masters programme. I have taken a tortuous path to get there, filled with tears, heartbreak and despair. But with this I have learnt to appreciate my achievements. We lightly esteem those things that are won with little effort. I have been admitted to the PhD programme in IR at USIU-A, so my journey continues. And when it is complete, the tape at the finishing line will say ‘USIU-A’.

There is an old African proverb that says “If you want to go fast, go alone. If you want to go far, go together.” This proverb summarizes my experience in USIU-Africa because through the university, I have come to see myself not only as an individual, but also as part of a community that supports me and that I must support in return.

As a freshman, I was what some would refer to as a lone wolf. I did everything alone. I walked to classes alone, I ate at the cafeteria alone and I studied alone. However, as the semesters went by, I noticed that I kept on sharing classes with similar groups of students and many of the faces that I saw in class became familiar. I started interacting with these students and soon, I considered them friends. I became especially close to those that were more outgoing than I was and challenged me to grow beyond my comfort zone.

Through these friendships, I was transformed for the better. The friends I made encouraged me to be more a more active student and to join some of the university’s clubs and committees, through which I made my most valuable university memories. While being active in different clubs and committees, I found strengths within me that I never knew existed. For instance, I discovered that I am a great debater and a passionate defender for marginalized groups. I also discovered that I have great leadership and decision-making skills. In general, my friends helped me grow into a well-rounded adult who is more than just a bookworm. However, I should also mention that studying became a lot easier when I did it with my friends.

My greatest accomplishments to date are linked to the support I received from not only from my peers, but also from lecturers and other USIU staff members. The people we interact with shape, mold and transform us. My advice to others is to build relationships with people who will challenge and empower you to reach your highest potential.

Before I joined campus, I would hear my family and friends talk about how hard university life was. At the time, I looked at them like they were crazy because how hard could it possibly be? It was the last 4 years of the 8-4-4 system and from all the movies I had watched, campus was the epitome of new experiences and total freedom. I was definitely in for a rude awakening. Although a majority of that is true, the freedom is there and the new experiences are there, I eventually realised that what my family and friends had failed to mention was that finding a perfect balance between academics and this new found freedom was going to be the difficult part.

My journey as a student at USIU-Africa started in May 2018. I was a transfer student from the Technical University of Kenya and I was equally as excited as I was nervous. Many people often ask me whether I had any problems coping with the change in universities. My answer is always the same, no. Although there were significant differences between the two institutions, I was able to meet and interact with an amazing group of people from my first semester all the way to my last one. These people challenged me physically, mentally, spiritually and emotionally. We helped each other find a balance between letting loose and having fun, participating in clubs and on campus activities while at the same time working hard to ensure our academic goals were achieved. I guess it’s safe to say we made it!

As this chapter comes to a close, I can’t help but stress the importance of finding balance. Regardless of where we go, each aspect of our lives will demand attention from us. Finding a balance that doesn’t neglect any aspect of our human experience, should always be a goal because overindulgence in one aspect tips the scales and takes away from another one. All in all, I can’t wait for the new and exciting experiences that await us.

Congratulations to the class of 2020!

Never think you have to follow anyone else’s path because everyone moves at their own pace.

I am rather appalled at the limits of characters for this. I am certain that I cannot fit all my thoughts of these last 4 years into such few characters.

Resilience and perseverance have created in you a global citizen

Robert Onsarigo
Dean, Student Affairs

Dear graduating students,

The Student Affairs department has walked with you from the first day of your orientation till this day when USIU-Africa confers on you the degree that you have earned through hard work. We believe that USIU-Africa has created in you the passion to perpetuate excellence in all your undertakings.

The intertwined nature of co-curricular and academic programs in the University has molded you into a global citizen. It has been a challenging period that required your resilience, perseverance and graceful approach to life. There have been moments characterized with pure joy and at times pain and tears, and you took it all in a stride. Each student graduating today can give a testimony of their experience in USIU-Africa. We sincerely believe that you have gained skills that will help you excel in the real world of work.

As we approach a new dawn of your life, we urge you to work hard and smart so as to achieve your goals. Always draw your dreams and aspirations closer to you, while simultaneously moving towards them. The normal world that all of us were used to has changed with the outbreak of the COVID19 pandemic. We sincerely believe that USIU-Africa has equipped you with skills and a positive attitude towards life, professionalism and work ethics that will help you adjust to the new norm and embrace the breaking dawn for yours has been a dusk to dawn journey.

Keep the flame of excellence alive wherever you go.

REFLECTIONS OF AN EDUCATION WELL RECEIVED
Omar AbdulWawood
Outgoing Student Council President

To my fellow graduating students,
Congratulations! This is a major turning point in our lives. During our time spent at USIU-Africa, we have learned many lessons and forged relationships that we will probably never forget until our last days. USIU-Africa has been more to us than just an educational institution. All the ups and downs of University life have probably been the most of value to us. As students, we have experienced many encounters, also sadly including the loss of other students that we only had the chance to share a few amazing moments with before we had to say goodbye too soon. They unfortunately did not have the chance to share this moment with us. May their souls rest in peace. These stories along with all the lessons that we have learned both in and outside of the classroom have been instrumental towards shaping the people that we are today and the individuals that we will become in the near future. Therefore, I believe we should be thankful for this great University and the platform that it has provided us with, as the Premier Academic Institution in the entire African region.

Initially, we all arrived on this campus as individuals on our own journeys but joined paths as we became members of the same community. Even though we have all interacted with many different people and we might have known which country or city that they came from, we probably had no idea about their past and the challenges that they went through to get to where they are currently in life. For example, my journey in life has been an interesting one and I attribute all of my achievements towards my lack of fear, resilience and passion for achieving my dreams as well as a lot of support from friends & family when I needed it the most. That being said, before my days at USIU I never truly had the opportunity to prove what I am capable of to myself and those around me.

I take this opportunity to salute those who have also worked tremendously hard, through many days and nights, in order to get to this point in their lives by doing the absolute necessary to achieve their goals regardless of any obstacles placed in front of them. I would like to thank everyone on our lovely campus that has made this possible. From our Vice-Chancellor to our lecturers, our staff members, and as well as those that help keep our university a clean and safe environment. Without them, none of this would have been possible for the rest of us. May our campus continue to develop and make us proud by bettering itself with every new opportunity that will arise and may it continue to ensure a level of service that is unmatched both in the international arena and African region.

USIU-Africa has been more to us than just an educational institution

Thank you for the honor of serving you.
In late 2016, right at the prime of my basketball career, I fractured my knee badly. Any athlete would tell you that an injury of that sort is enough to render any talent in sports useless. I had just gotten out of surgery when I joined USIU in fall 2017 and I was pretty sure that playing basketball would remain nothing but a pipe dream. My movement was limited to a certain extent. If someone had told me at the time that I would still be playing four years down the line and for Kenya’s National team, I would not have believed them. No support system was as robust throughout my recovery as the one I got from USIU. I went through series of strength and conditioning sessions at the gym and little by little, my healing process began. I could soon play a whole game without feeling any pain. My confidence increased both on and off-court, keep in mind, I was juggling both sports and academics at an above par level.

By 2018 I was team captain with an array accolades to my name. I therefore got myself a mentor, Dr. Lumbasi who is also the ladies basketball patron. He has mentored me since freshman year. I have had the best experiences, met lifetime friends, learnt more than I could ever have known and even travelled abroad for international tournaments all thanks to USIU.

My Odyssey started way before arriving in Germany. Getting accommodation in Frankfurt was not the easiest of things. I was lucky to have a teammate from the USIU rugby team who has a cousin that stays in Frankfurt where he is doing masters (at Frankfurt School of Applied Sciences) and plays rugby. Coincidentally, he had also taken up the study abroad program there and was going to be in Sweden for the exact same period I was to be in Germany. Here, he stayed with other members of the SC 1880 Rugby team which I then joined. The owner of the team owned a couple of houses in that area called Dornbusch and had set aside some which were close together and gave to the members of the team. This was mainly because most of the people who play there and not Germans with Majority of them coming from South Africa and New Zealand and others from Argentina, Samoa, Italy, and Australia.

I arrived in Frankfurt on the 2nd of September and was picked at the airport by a contact the school had given me. He then took me to my address and helped me settle down on the first day. On the same day, the team had also gotten a new member from New Zealand who was staying in the room opposite mine. We later found out that we were on the same flight from Dubai to Frankfurt. This made us good friends all through my stay as we settled together. At Frankfurt School, I had 6-hour classes with one class running from 8am to 4pm but with breaks in between. At first it seemed very tiring, but I adjusted and ended up liking them. Professors were from all over Europe, classes were very interactive, the learning methods were different as they were more practical with dissertations and presentations which are based on the current issues. This made me get to know a lot about the economy of the country and the people as I worked with them in my class groups. We also had various school activities like the school Internationals Day where with the help of two other Kenyans who I met (One actually being a USIU alumni), had a table with Kenyan foods which we made ourselves.

My study abroad experience made me grow in all aspects of my life and know so much about myself. There is something about living in a country that is different from yours that makes you very open minded and self-aware. I got to meet people from all over the world who I became close with and we still keep in touch. I also used this opportunity to travel and got the chance to visit other countries like Luxembourg, Czech Republic, Italy, and Austria.
A man called Okoli in Mbatha village, in Chinua Achebe’s novel, Things Fall Apart, was said to have done the unthinkable. He had killed a python. A python was a sacred animal that villagers revered and addressed as “our father.” To them it was like a god. This was the worst abomination according to local people. Whenever a villager committed an act of sacrilege the gods had to be appeased through sacrifice and other traditional rights to prevent the wrath of the deities. When elders gathered to give direction on the issue they were at a loss. There was no known punishment prescribed for a man who killed a python “unknowingly.” Okoli had just been converted to Christianity and had killed the sacred snake knowingly as a sign of defiance to the traditions of his people. As one elder explained, such an affront to the gods had not happened in the land before. So, there was no known sacrifice or punishment for such a violation. They did not know what to do to Okoli.

When the COVID-19 pandemic broke out in the Spring of 2020, and the government ordered all universities closed, this is where Kenya’s higher education found itself. It had never happened before. Many universities closed down, interrupting all their academic programs. They did not know what to do. In USIU-Africa, it was different. Thanks to versatile faculty, staff, and students who took advantage of technological preparedness to make sure that the university move seamlessly to online teaching and learning. This is why you, Class of 2020, are graduating on your scheduled time. An interruption of such magnitude would have been devastating but you survived it and soldiered on. You quickly adjusted to the ‘new normal’. This makes you a special graduating class.

We at the Yearbook also made sure that we maintain the tradition of producing the graduand’s most cherished memento, the Yearbook, in soft copy for the first time. This is a student-run project and it is an affirmation that our students are prepared for any challenge all the time. Your education will indeed take you places. We are proud to be associated with your resilience and determination. You did it!

According to Carl Jung, the privilege of a lifetime is to become who you really are. Few get to experience this privilege, and I am certainly still in the process of discovering and defining who I really am. Some parts of myself, I have developed further as a result of my work with the yearbook and the team. As for who I am now, I am a self-proclaimed expert multitasker with a passion for greater understanding, open-mindedness, continuous learning and growth, and spontaneity in the name of adventure.

It is said that pictures and smiles are worth 1000 words. Irys has had the profound pleasure of being part of the team what has compiled the 2020 yearbook, in a year that has mainly left us speechless and gloomy. Her love for adventure and upbeat personally helped her work well with the team, and enjoy working with the yearbook again. She hopes the book puts more than 1000 words on your faces, and gives you memories you will forever cherish.

A social butterfly according to her friends, though she feels otherwise. She loves to read, write her blogs, paint, design and create. Naturally an adventurous person who feels “It’s not just about being better. Its about being different.” Ekta Dodhia took up the yearbook because it would help her evolve in her designing and creative career. Her experience was one of many hurdles but she didn’t give up. Instead she gave more time and energy to the book. It was an experience of a life time that she will cherish and learn from as the years pass.

“Every great design begins with an even better story.” - Lorinda Mamo
Savannah believes that there is no truer statement that could be made about the USIU Yearbook 2020. She considered it a privilege to contribute through photography and design in telling the inconceivable story of 2020 through the eyes of the student body. Being a part of this year’s team pushed her to overcome challenges and be creative under pressure. The experience gained, coupled with her writing skills, will be additional stepping stones in her journey of creating great design and telling greater stories.
